Victims' Voice is 'no benefit to the county'

"This new position looks like another level of unnecessary bureaucracy being introduced when there are underlying problems which need to be tackled.

"The PCC should concentrate on ensuring the police budget is spent effectively on frontline police officers who, in turn, need to make victims feel comfortable enough to speak up."

Ms Sarkis said: "I am going to work hard at putting the victim at the front of the agenda. This is happening on a national scale and this feels like a really important part in the crime commissioner's work in the county.

"I tend to think victims are an afterthought and as a result they are not at the heart of the criminal justice system.

Editor's Letter A good dinner is not always in good taste

I WAS at the Cobblers' end of season dinner on Sunday

The great and the good from Northampton Town Football Club gathered at The Park Inn for the event.

This was the same night Clarke Carlisle, Northampton's eloquent captain, was at the PFA dinner being embarrassed by the act of comedian Reginald D Hunter.

Reginald is black and from the American deep south.

He guests on QI and Have I Got News For You regularly and his stand-up act is liber-ally sprinkled with the N-word.

After a season of court cases and inquiries into racism in the Premiership including the John Terry case in which his defence rested on his assertion that he used the N-word but isn't

There must have been squirming in the room racist - you can imagine there must have been some squirming in the room.

The comedian at the Cobblers' dinner was Russ Williams, a fast talking wise-cracker with a testimonial from Freddie Starr on his website.

He had his own sticky moment having brought a selection of the audience on to the stage for a bingo style game. Everyone got a bit of comedy abuse including one short of stature contestant dubbed Papa Smurf and a maggot. He looked a bit defenceless: grinning as he took a verbal pasting. Mr Williams must have smelled the mood of the crowd. He later manipulated the charity auction so that Chairman David Cardoza ended up buying his new small friend manager Aidy Boothroyd's coat. From this dinner at least, everyone went home happy.

Dream turns into reality for Jimmy

A DREAM has come true for a former professional jockey from Northamptonshire.

Jimmy James from Upton in Northampton was the lucky reader who scooped the first prize in an exclusive competition in the Herald & Post.

It is like the wheel of fortune has turned full circle for Jimmy as he rode his last race in the county at Towcester on January 6, 1995, when he brought Tennenessee Twist home in second place.

When he was in the saddle he rode horses for, among others, the famous British trainer Jenny Pitman

Included in the long list of horses he rode was Royal Athlete who won the national in 1995, Garrison Savannah who won the Gold Cup in 1994 and Rough Quest. Mr James, 40, said: "I rode when I was 18, 19

Cry for help stops thieves

AN 11-year-old's cry for help stopped two men stealing a car.

The incident happened outside Barclays Bank in Weedon Road, Northampton, at around 9pm on Sunday.

Two men on bicycles approached the car where the child was in the passenger seat. The child called for help and the men made off on their bikes.

Hostel objectors meet in car park to voice worry over 42-bed plan

BY SOPHIE SCOTT

TENSIONS ran high at a public meeting about plans to build a homeless 'hostel' as about 200 people crowded outside a hall to hear an MP speak on the issue.

The gathering, organised by the Lakeview Residents' Association, was in opposition against a planning application that was submitted to Northampton Borough Council to turn a former care home in Churchill Avenue, Northampton, into a 42-bed 'hostel'.

Last week, the Herald & Post reported that a petition had been started by the residents' association.

An initial meeting last week was attended by almost 100 people.

Residents in the surrounding area are angry about the proposal and its potential impact on the area, especially on children's park nearby and the feeling that misinformation been given out. Posters had

Michael Ellis, MP for Northampton

North, hosted the meeting - and had to stand on a chair in the middle of the car park to be heard by all the attendees. He said: "There has been a fantastic turnout. The fact that we had to hold it outside in the car park just shows how people are really upset about this.
"I have never seen such a strong movement of opposition.

Bigamist is caught marrying his second bride in Las Vegas when pictures appear on Facebook

Polls open for new parish

A MAN was found to be committing burglary after pictures of his wedding were spotted on Facebook

Garry Floodgate, 54, was still married to his Wellingborough wife Rachel when he said his yows to Candian Sheila Siebert, 55, last June in Las Vegas.

Floodgate, 54, was caught after pictures of the wedding in the chapel at the Circus Circus hotel were spotted on Facebook.

The plant driver from Bletchley thought that when he wed divorcee Sheila his divorce had come through.

When the wedding pictures appeared on Facebook the police were called because he was still legally married to his now ex-wife Rachel, 26.

When Sheila found the truth she ditched Floodgate as well.

Floodgate pleaded guilty to committing bigamy on June 5 last year. He was sentenced to 20 weeks in jail on Monday at Northampton Magistrates Court, but his lawyers have lodged an appeal against his sentence.

At an earlier hearing in Wellingborough, prosecutor John Cavener said: "The defendant formed a relationship with a Canadian national over the internet and the relationship became a serious one.
"He went over and met the lady and after a very short space of time they decided to get married. Unfortunately he was separated and going through divorce proceedings, but was not divorced."

A decree nisi was granted on June 12, 2012 - eight days after the Vegas wedding. On July 26, 2012, the decree absolute was granted by Milton Keynes county court. Floodgate told the court: "I was just confused. I had lots of things going on in my

Hotel to close as new business set to takeover

LIME Trees Hotel has ceased trading. The popular wedvenue, in k Road, ding Barrack Northampton, went into administration last May.

The building has been sold for a different use - which is not vet known - and the hotel will close at the said: "We received genuine expressions of interest to buy the Hotel which encouraged us to continue, although nothing had been finalised by the time we received an attractive offer on the building for alternative use, which our agents advised us to accept.

About 50 weddings have been affected by the closure.

'Monitor who has dogs' - councillor

BY ANNABEL HOWARD

A DOG owner and Liberal Democrat thinks dog licensing could conquer the 'on or off lead' issue.

Sally Councillor Beardsworth's response comes after readers contacted the Herald & Post after a story about a 'dangerous' boxer dog in Bradlaugh Fields, Northampton.

This sparked a debate as to whether or not it is safe for all dogs to be off their leads in public areas.

Cllr Beardsworth, county council ward member for Kingsthorpe, said: "I think it's down to responsible owners, if they are aggressive then keep them on their lead and it's not the dog's fault. "Some dogs are a bit boisterous at their best and aggressive at their worst.

"Owners need to keep them under control. I would like to see dog licensing brought

"Owners should also make sure they have plenty of bags sure they have pienty of bags - you wouldn't forget if it was a baby's nappy."

She also slammed young men who deliberately try to make dogs into a 'weapon'.

She said: "A lot of those young men who have Staffies and they quite like them to be aggressive but often they do not realise that their dog could be taken away if it's thought to be dangerous. We should monitor who has dogs.

"Some people are not good at looking after animals. We have only got to read reports from RSPCA after they are not riom RSP-CA after they are not properly looked after by owners, which makes dogs nasty."

Another topic for readers were 'dog parks' which provide a space for dogs to run off their lead.

Cllr Beardsworth added: "They would be ideal for teaching dogs to socialise in a safe environment, but if you have a nice-natured dog you do not need separate areas. I think it would be better to have 'no dog' areas rather than specific areas for dogs.

We should follow Australia's lead on dog parks

AFTER reading your article in last week's Herald and Post regarding wether dogs should be let off leads or not, I would like to express how delighted I am that this debate has finally been raised to the point of appearing in a paper.

I raised this issue with Northampton Borough Council more than two years ago, when my partner and I returned from a three-year stay in Australia, bringing back with us our dog. Our concerns were that although our dog is

Our concerns were that although our dog is in no way aggressive, being a large breed of dog at 50kg, anyone seeing him running loose or anyone having him run up to them, can be intimidated and even frightened, especially small children.

So I enquired as to whether there were any designated dog parks around our village where we could let him off the lead in the knowledge that he was protected by being in a secure environment away from vehicles and roads and the general public didn't feel threatened or intimidated by his presence.

The response I had from the council was in fact quite negative and that there were no such places.

It was also made clear to us that it was our responsibility to ensure our dog behaved correctly while out in public, (which, being responsible dog owners, we do), and further more that if our dog should be off the lead and kill a sheep or such like in a field, a farmer had the right to shoot it!

Not quite the response I anticipated to the PETS: Dog owners have raised concerns about pets being let off the lead in Northampton parks actual question I asked, but hey.... the dog park, it also allows the owners to g

We could learn an awful lot from the way Australia in particular take the needs of their pet lovers into consideration.

Every town had at least one designated dog park, where dogs can be safely let off the lead in a totally secured area and where it can then interact with other dogs freely, which in itself is an important part of their socialisation development.

A dog needs to learn behavioural skills that only being in this free environment can teach them.

By also having a sheltered seating area in the dog park, it also allows the owners to get together and discuss any concerns, issues or tips they may have with each other, which again is great news especially for new dog owners who will naturally be uncertain in a lot of areas.

These parks don't have to be over a huge area of land, so if there is any way to encourage councils to start developing these areas I, for one, as would many dog owners, would welcome the news.

Yardley Gobion

Dog parks are a great idea

YES, I do believe a fenced-off dog activity area is an excellent idea, I lived in the USA for a long time, and fenced-off areas are used for dogs and their walkers there.

I owned a large breed dog who I took to the 'dog parks' as they are called where I lived in California and Nevada, I thoroughly enjoyed taking my dog to them, some were quite large, others smaller.

I took my dog to these parks every day for several years, not once did I witness a problem with dogs fighting, dogs usually get along well together when running and playing free, they usually sort theirselves out, leads on dogs usually create a problem especially if only one of two dogs meeting up is restrained on a lead.

Pick-up poop bags were supplied in the parks which were attached to the wire fencing, but of course dog walkers can provide their own.

I missed these parks so much when I returned to the UK. They are so much better and they are also very good for dog owners to meet up and socialise and pass on dogsy tips to each other, as well as our four-legged friends

Please consider fenced-off dog parks they are awesome, and if the area is big enough, a smaller enclosed area inside the dog park is good for dogs that aren't so friendly and need keeping on their leads or muzzled.

Dogs have to have somewhere to run, walking a dog on a lead does not give him or her the adequate excersise a dog needs or the enjoyment of running free and playing with other dogs.

A dog should enjoy his daily excersise. which cannot happen restrained on a lead.

From one who has used and experienced the joy and benifits of fenced off dog parks.

Uncaring attitude to pet attacks

I HOPE the actual intention of last week's lead letter was not to give the impression that people should just have to deal with their dogs being attacked, as that was certainly the way it came across.

People should not have to put up with the bad behaviour of other people's dogs, and it is time that dog attacks were made an offence. Why should owners have to end up forking out hundreds, maybe thousands, of pounds in vet bills because someone else has let their dog be out of control? Let alone the fact it is normally the owners of off-lead dogs that don't clean up after their animals, as they always conveniently don't see it.

Many people own dogs that for various reason are nervous of other dogs, and the worst thing is when you get some selfish idiot who thing is when you get some selfish idiot who lets their dog run up to anything without checking it's OK to do so first. These people always just assume it's alright to let dogs gallop up to and jump all over anything.

The dog attacks in our area are usually either

Ine dog attacks in our area are usually either Jack Russells or Labradors doing the attacking, and the reaction of the owners is usually disgraceful.

Dogs do not need to be off a lead in a public place to train them, that is utter nonsense.

You can teach basic commands in your gar-

You can teach basic commands in your garden, then when teaching recall on a long training lead 'til they are competant; if you don't have a garden you shouldn't have a dog. Responsible owners should never have to accept that their dogs might be attacked, that is just an appalling attitude, and so uncaring. If people need to let their dogs run loose then they should do far more to make sure they are not a nuisance to other owners and people.

BRILLIANT suggestion from Iain Duncan-Smith that rich pensioners should return their benefits to help the economic situation.

Cruelty caseload up by 50 per cent

sophie.scott@hpnorthants.co.uk

THERE has been an increase of 50 per cent in animal cruelty and neglect convictions across Northamptonshire, the RSPCA has announced.

The RSPCA Prosecutions Annual Report shows that there were 21 convictions in 2012, compared to 14 in 2011.

Included in the prosecutions was a 28-year-old Kettering man who was convicted at Kettering Magistrates' Court of causing unnecessary suffering to 11 rabbits.

The man was sentenced to eight weeks custody concur-rent for both offences and disqualified from keeping animals for five years.

The court was told the man had been left to look after his brother and girlfriend's 11 rabbits, two dogs and fish. Six of the rabbits died after suffering from malnutrition and dehy dration.

RSPCA Chief Executive Gavin Grant said: "For us, prosecution is always the last resort. Our inspectors investigated 150,833 suspected crucases and issued 78,090 advice notices last year - these are extremely effective in improving the care of animals.

SUFFERING: An RSPCA picture of the rabbits which were mistreated

'However if there is evidence of a crime and serious animal abuse then we will take legal action to protect the animals and prevent further abuse.

"We also want to see judges taking these offences far more seriously. More animals need our help than ever before and I urge everyone to dig deep and give us as much support as you can - hold a fundraising event during RSPCA Week, volunteer for us, or if you are able, please give a new home to an abandoned or abused animal.

more than ever we need all animal lovers to stand up against a rising tide of ani mal cruelty.

Rugby stars meet fans at open day

FANS of Northampton Saints were able to rub shoulders with their heroes on Saturday when the club held an open day. Courtney Lawes, Dylan Hartley and Ben Foden were among the stars who turned out to sign autographs and meet the fans at Franklin's Gardens.

There was no charge for the behind the scenes glimpse and visitors were able to wander through the changing rooms, press areas and other parts of the stadium normally restricted to the public.

A marquee was erected in the food village which featured a number of activities including a Patak challenge and table tennis games with Courtney.

During the afternoon Saints staged an U-17 match which was also free to attend.

Terminally ill woman fears for her home

lawrence.john@hpnorthants.co.uk

A WOMAN with a terminal illness believes the Government's 'bedroom tax' means she has 'lost the right to die in her own home'.

Kay Critchlaw, 50, from Wellingborough, has emphysema and believes she will be dead within the next ten years.

She is angry the Government has introduced its new Universal Credit to include an 'under-occupancy' penalty for council and housing association tenants, who are considered to have more rooms than they need. Currently they are allowed to have one spare hedroom

Miss Critchlaw said: "I will have to move at some point in the future and I have put my name down for a one bedroom bunga-low. If I get that it will mean I will not be able to have anyone to stay if I am ill or need help

"At the moment I live alone in a two bedroom property which I will have to pay £600 rent per year and an extra £60 for this bedroom

Chairman of Northamptonshire Disabled People Against the Cuts, John Smith, believes the new tax is forcing disabled people out of their homes and into smaller accommodation.

He decried the tax as it meant thousands of disabled people who had spent money upgrading their homes will be forced to leave and go into one bedroom properties.

He said: "I don't know if this will be overturned.

"It could turn out to be like the poll tax: can't pay so won't pay."

FREDDIE Mercury once sang: "Don't stop me now I'm having a good time, I am having a ball".

This sensation is exactly what Sawpoint from what Northamptonshire are aiming to achieve when they take part in the high octane adrenaline fuelled 2013 Red Bull Soapbox Derby at Alexandra Palace in London on July 14.

The Northampton team from Harlestone Firs in New Duston is looking to prove they can keep the pedal to the metal and shown they are driven by the need for speed.

The quartet of Martin Smith (driver), Brett Goldsmith (co-driver), Larry Jessept (head squirrel) and Lisa Eversden (co-ordinator) have to get their 'racing car' around the three mile track in the fastest time and in one piece. Red Bull Soapbox Race is an international event in which amateur drivers race homemade soapbox vehicles.

Each hand-made machine is fuelled by nothing but sheer courage and the force of grav-

This unique, non-motorised racing event challenges both experienced racers and amateurs alike to design and build outrageous soapbox dream machines and compete against the clock in a down-

SOAPBOX: A first look at the design which the Northampton team

.There are only 60 teams in the soapbox derby and Saw Point are the only ones flying the flag for the Northamptonshire and the town of Northampton.

The spark for entering was beer and each member of the team wanted to be involved in such a unique event.

Team co-ordinator, Lisa said: "Going down the track will be hair-raising.

"There will be an obstacle course with walls and jumps which you have to go over.

"We have been working together as team and meeting every week to discuss up ev plans.

"At the moment it does not seems real but I am sure it will seem more when we get nearer the deadline.

"We are working with the TDR team as they have years of experience of building rac-

has drawn up for its entry in the soapbox derby

READY: Martin Smith and Brett Goldsmith

"They are one of our sup porters who will help us build the soapbox.

"There are only 60 teams entered and as far as I know we are the only team from Northamptonshire.

"If our car gets around the course depends on the skill of the driver "There will be two people in the car, the driver and a navi-"We will only have one shot

"At the start we will have to entertain the crowd for 30 seconds and are looking to work with a choreographer.

"As we all work with wood and our team is called Sawpoint we want our car to look like a 3d saw."

The team is still discussing if we will built it out of metal and are looking at the potential of using aluminium.

But they might have to look at working with safer materials which if there was a crash would not injure the competi-

Lisa added: "At the moment we are trying to beg steal and borrow all the parts we need.

"Red Bull will be visiting us before the race to check the racer as we have to meet certain criteria.

"We will definitely being doing all we can to get the soapbox racer to the end.

Feed In Tariffs, RHI Payments, PV systems... How confused are you?

With so much gossip, hearsay and regulation change in the PV world, it is not surprising that most people have either not heard of feed in tariffs, or have been so bamboozled by fast-talking salesmen that you would need a masters degree just to decipher any part of what they tell you.

Well, at last, a company that talks in plain English and explains things in an easy to understand manner.

A spokesman from Green & Co Renewables said: "If explained in terms people can understand then the whole renewable technology field becomes less daunting and even exciting for customer.

"Let's take a typical PV system; I won't bore you with all the technical details and sales speak of why you should be considering one, let's assume that you have heard of these PV systems that produce electricity and decided that, for whatever reason, protecting yourself against future electricity costs, you want the feed in payments, or, for environmental reasons, on have decided that you want to know more of the financial benefits of having one on your home.

'The 'best' size for a normal household is 4kW (that is a system that will produce 4000 watts of electricity at its peak output). The reason a 4kW is ideal is that it offers the most in terms of payments you receive per unit.

"If you go over a 4kW system, you get a reduced payment per unit and normally this will not make up for the extra money you have to spend on the extra panels and equipment. Funnily enough, if you have the space and money to go for a system which is, say, 6kW, then the calculations come back inline, even though you receive less money per unit, because you are generating so many more units than a 4kW system.

"Anyway, back to what we were talking about. So you have a nice new PV system on your roof, how much money can you expect back from it? Bear with me while I explain how much you get paid "Let's assume that your PV system will produce 2000 kilo watt hours of electric per year. Currently the payment per kWh (kilo watt hour) is 15.44 pence per unit, so 2000 x 15.44p = £308.80.

"And on top of that, 50% of what the system produces (so that's 1000 kWh) is deemed to be produces (so that a 1000 kWn) is declined to exported back to the national grid. Again, this is a deemed payment, so it does not matter if you put back in to the grid all of your 2,000 hours or none of them, you still get paid for a deemed 50% export. So an additional 1000 kWh x 4.5p = £45. "So you would £353.80 in cash each year.

"Now, as well as receiving this cash, it is normally tax free, RPI linked and guaranteed for 20 years! There is an added benefit to be had.

"Remember from earlier that your system is producing 2,000 hours a year, well 1,000 of those have been sen back to the grid, so that leaves 1,000 more hours that you have not bought from your electricity supplier. "For the sake of argument, let's assume you pay 14 pence per unit for your electricity. So the 1,000 hours you are producing and using are saving you a further £140 yearly on your electricity bill.

"Putting all of this together, your system is providing you with a total benefit of £493.80 annually.

"You have to remember that a lot of assumption: have taken place here. We are talking about a 4kW system producing only 2,000 hours annually, where, in the real world, this is normally a lot higher.

"There are a lot of factors that determine the final amount of hours your system will generate and that's why we come along and provide a free comprehensive site survey on your home.

"With system costs as low as £6,500 fully fitted, even on the figures above you can see a 7% return on your investment. Now tell me where you can get that nowadays!

"Green & Co Renewables have in the energy business since 2007 and have provided installations since 2009.

"Specialising in PV systems, Solar hot water systems, Air and Ground source heat pumps and Air Conditioning, the company has seen significant growth throughout these troubled times, mainly due to more and more people seeing the benefits of the services we offer.

"With an honest, straightforward and understandable approach to its customers, the company prides itself on doing the absolute best job for all of its clients.

"And just one final word; we have proved that we are here for the long run and haven't Just jumped on the bandwagon like a lot of firms have done lately.

PRE-NUPTIAL

DIVORCE

When planning to marry or enter into a civil partnership, a pre-nuptial agreement is something worth considering depending on your circumstances. A pre-nuptial agreement sets out what you and your future spouse or civil partner agree should happen in relation to your finances if your relationship breaks down and you separate. Pre-nuptial agreements are now much more common but are not yet legally binding. However, the courts do take them into consideration, providing that there have been no significant events such as the birth of children or serious illness

A couple can only start divorce proceedings if they have been married for more than one year. For divorce to be granted you must be able to prove that your marriage has irretrievably broken down. In order to prove this, you must rely upon one of the following facts: that your spouse has committed adultery and you find it intolerable to live with them; that your spouse has behaved in such a way that you cannot reasonably be expected to live with them; that your spouse has deserted you for a period of at least 2 years; that you and your spouse have been separated for at least two years and your spouse consents to the divorce; or that you and your spouse have lived apart for at least 5 years. If both parties consent to the divorce then it can usually proceed undefended however if your spouse will not agree to the divorce then it may become defended.

In either case you should consult a solicitor for advice and support.

CHILD MAINTENANCE

When a couple who have children separate, the absent parent is usually required to pay child maintenance to the parent with care. The sum that is payable will vary depending upon the absent parent's income, the number of children and the number of nights that the child/children spend with the absent parent. The Child Support Agency (CSA), or the Child Maintenance Service (CMS) for some new cases, will assess the amount of money which the absent parent should pay towards the upkeep of his or her child/children. If you contact a solicitor they will be able to provide you with an indication of the amount that you may receive.

DFA Law's specialised family lawyers are based in Cheyne Walk, Northampton. They are headed by Alan Kiddle who has been largely responsible, through his reputation in dealing with complicated financial matters, for DFALaw's Family Law Department achieving "premier league" status within the prestigious Legal 500 publication throughout the last twelve years, an achievement unmatched amongst the Department's competitors. Apart from undertaking private client divorce and financial settlement work, the firm also helps clients with a wide range of other family and relationship matters, e.g. separation issues, prenuptial and cohabitation agreements, issues concerning children.

Mediation and Collaborative Law processes are offered as alternatives to what some might regard as "old style lawyer" advice and assistance. The Firm prides itself upon the fact that the vast majority of clients arrive through recommendation from others, both former clients and professional persons. For those who may be in need of help in the future we wish simply to say,

"We offer a friendly, comprehensive, efficient and cost effective service"

If we can help you please telephone or email Alan Kiddle, Jayne Kitchen or Elaine Foster.

This beautiful, individually designed stone built home is very spacious and far larger than the front view suggests. With 4 bedrooms, a study/5th bedroom, three bathrooms (two en-suite) plus a ground floor cloakroom WC, spacious lounge and a lovely big kitchen/dining/family room and separate utility, space is in abundance! As well as all this internal space, there is a large front garden, lovely court yard rear garden and double garage beyond which is a lovely large further garden fully enclosed and ideal for children to play in. As well as the double glazing and excellent levels of insulation, the property has gas powered underfloor heating throughout, solar panels for the hot water and all the rooms have their own thermostat control, so household bills can be kept to a minimum.

A NEW scheme of 31 affordable homes by Westleigh Developments is set to transform an overgrown derelict site on the outskirts of Wellingborough.

A former allotment site in Senwick Road which has not been used since the early 1960s will be redeveloped by Westleigh Partnership Homes.

The business hopes to provide high quality houses in this vacant site to make a positive contribution in addressing pri-ority affordable housing needs in the Westleigh are working in part-nership with Derwent Living to deliver the scheme which has benefited from Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) facebook.com/ funding.

Construction is now underway on site with completion expected for October 2013.

HeraldPost The scheme itself will provide a total of 31 homes, 25 for affordable rent and six available for shared ownership, ensuring local people will be able to live in affordable homes in close proximity to the town centre.

Samantha Veal, Assistant Director of Development at Derwent Living, said: "Senwick Road will not only bring new homes to the people of Wellingborough, but will also provide much needed employment during the construction phase, two key needs in these difficult economic times.

"Derwent Living is committed to investing in homes and jobs and we are pleased to be working with Westleigh and our Local Authority partners to achieve this."

Ian Jones, Business Development Director at Westleigh, said: "We are pleased to have commenced work on this scheme, the scheme will transform a vacant and overgrown site providing much needed affordable housing for local people. "Our work with Derwent Living on this scheme is also an excellent example of our partnerships working which matches our abilities to secure land and our construction expertise with the skills and experi-ence of our Registered Provider partners to manage and maintain affordable homes."

Westleigh Partnership Homes works closely together with housing associa-tions to build affordable new homes throughout the East Midlands, South Yorkshire and Cambridgeshire.

Sarah's new role is a big challenge

BIRD SONG

Royal & Derngate

PLAYING the role of Isabelle Azaire in Bird Song is according to former Hollyoaks star, Sarah Jayne Dunn 'the most challenging of Sarah joined the soap when she was 14-yearsold as wannabe supermodel Mandy.

She left in 2006 and has taken on a number of roles including appearing the farce Boeing-Boeing and Sally in When Harry met Sally.

Now she is focussing on this new adaptation of Sebastian Faulks' Bird Song.

She said: "This is the most extreme difference I have come along in my career and it is the most challenging.

"This play is set between 1910 and 1916 and focuses on the characters and what they have to overcome.

"All these factors make it one of the best jobs

"Before I got the role I had not read the book but I heard about the play as many people had when it appeared on television.

"I do face a challenge with this role which is good. It is something which is taking me out of my comfort zone and this is helping to make it good finished product.

"This is the first drama I have done as previously I have appeared in comedies such as Boeing - Boeing or When Harry met Sally. "Those were light hearted where as this is a straight drama.

"For this we have all studied research about the period. "We visited France where the battle took place and visited the war memorials.

"We have also had a First World War historian speaking to us about the period."

Ringing the Tubular Bells for two in harmony

MUSIC

TUBLAR BELLS FOR TWO

Royal & Derngate

FOLLOWING sell-out seasons at the Sydney Fringe Festival, the New Zealand International Arts Festival and the Edinburgh Festival Fringe Tubular Bells For Two comes to Northampton.

In this show, two multi- talented musicians recreate the album live on stage, in real time in a spectacle for the eyes and ears. Rather than simply mimicking Oldfield's multi-tracked arrangements for his classic 1973 album Tubular Bells.

Amongst the vast collection of instruments on stage are keyboards, umpteen guitars, bass, mandolin, glockenspiel and loop pedals and of course tubular bells, and in order to recreate the seamless transitions the performers have to leap between guitars and pianos and drums (sometimes all three at once), recording and overdubbing loops live on the spot.

Tubular Bells For Two started as an idea con-iured up over a bottle of wine by old school friends Daniel Holdsworth and Aidan Roberts.

After arranging the music by ear on acoustic guitars, more instruments started to be added from friends, rubbish skips etc and the show was created. Their first set of tubular bells were fashioned from fence posts

Mike Oldfield's Tubular Bells was released on 25th May 1973 by newly formed Virgin Records, and the album reached No.1 in charts around the world, selling in excess of 15 million copies.

Much of its early success lying in the support from John Peel who played the album in its entirety on Radio 1.

The music was used in the 2012 London Olympic Opening Ceremony.

NFW CAR REVIEW

SEAT Ibiza Cupra SPANISH FLY

The SEAT Ibiza Cupra has never quite attracted the same following as Cupra versions of its bigger brother, the Leon. Perhaps this one can change all that. Andy Enright reports.

Although there is 'just' a 1.4-litre direct injection engine under the Ibiza's bonnet, it's got both a turbocharger and a supercharger bolted to it, so you have 180PS and 250Nm under your right boot and not very much weight in the nose. The TSI powerplant is genuinely tiny. Open the bonnet and it looks lost but it does sound big thanks to a sound actuator in the exhaust system that gives a breathy bass tone when you tread on the throttle hard. The Cupra will scuttle top 62mph in just 6.9 seconds, so it's genuinely quick for a supermini-based GTI, and it'll run on to a top speed of 142mph. It's helped to that excellent sprint time by its standard DSG seven-speed twin-clutch transmission and you can either leave it to do its own thing or you can bang in the shifts with the wheel-mounted paddles.

The chassis of the Ibiza Cupra has been given a bit of a working over too. The ride height has been lowered compared to the standard car, and an optional AP Performance braking system is available, offering serious stopping power. An XDS electronic differential lock reduces the tendency to understeer and improves handling through fast corners. Compared to something like a Suzuki Swift Sport, the SEAT is a more serious, aggressive thing, un-frightened by the prospect of rivals like Peugeot's 208 GTI or Renaultsport's Clio.

This Ibiza Cupra is quite different to that which has gone before. Every other Ibiza Cupra has been a bit portly but this latest car is very different. It's taut and looks gym-honed, the sheet metal stretched keenly over its compact shape. The front end gets a broad grille and very aggressive air intake combo, with standard fit bi-xenon lights providing the dress jewellery. LED daytime running lights trace the line of the headlamps to deliver an eye-catching light signature, as do the LED rear lights. The bi-xenon headlamp technology delivers strong illumination, while cornering lights are integrated into the large fog lamps.

You'd be right in thinking there's a real payoff with that I.4-litre TSI engine in terms of economy. If we take that Corsa VXR as a benchmark, it'll return some pretty good figures - 38.7mpg on the combined fuel consumption cycle for example. You wouldn't be unhappy with that for a focused sports hatch would you? But SEAT would be. Choose the Ibiza and you're looking at 47.9mpg as a combined cycle return. That's not just a few clicks better. It's more than 26 per cent better than the Vauxhall. And this Ibiza's quicker too. Did I mention that?

Residual values will no doubt be buoyed up as a result. The market for performance cars these days might look a little flat in the mid ranges but it's still very strong at the top end and also at the bottom, where cars like this SEAT Ibiza Cupra retain a strong appeal to those who want thrills without the bills.

The market into which the SEAT Ibiza Cupra finds itself pitched is in a state of flux. Some traditional big hitters are just being phased out or are only now finding their feet and as a result, the Cupra, which always used to be a bit-part player, suddenly emerges as a really strong contender for your money. With a genuinely impressive turn of speed, amazing efficiency and the added bonus of that delightful DSG transmission, the Cupra is a real draw.

SEAT has been given the hand-me-downs from the Volkswagen empire for a long time now, so it's refreshing to see it turn a corner and start producing cars which stand up to the harshest scrutiny. The company needs vehicles like the Ibiza Cupra if it's to pay its way. And your job, gentle reader, is to reward it with your patronage when it transforms an also-ran into a contender for class leader.

Osbourne optimistic at home

MOTORSPORT

JOE Osborne hopes for an upturn in his fortunes when the British GT Championship visits his home circuit of Rockingham for the second round of the series over the May Bank Holiday.

The Northampton racer and codriver Lee Mowle had to settle for 14th and 19th place finishes in the first two races of the year at Oulton Park during the Easter weekend in their 888Optimum BMW Z4.

Nevertheless, Osborne believes the car is good enough to allow them to compete with the GT3 frontrunners and hopes he can utilise his runners and nopes he can utilise his vast knowledge of Corby's Rockingham circuit.

I've been an instructor at Rockingham for a long time now, so I've done thousands of laps of the track," said Osborne. "I don't think I've ever raced there and not won so I've ever raced there and not won so in that sense, it's certainly one of my preferred tracks.

"We had a few issues with settings on the car, but we weren't a million miles away from a strong result at Oulton. All of our testing in the run-up to the season had been in the wet, so it was actually a bit of a shame to have two dry races that weekend.

"But now we've had some dry run-ning, I'm optimistic about our chances for the next race."

Osborne has also been encouraged by the progress of co-driver Mowle, who has stepped up from GT4 to GT3 in 2013, having previously worked with him as his instructor.

Nash out in front

MOTORSPORT

JAMES Nash leads the way in the Yokohama Trophy for independent drivers, but it was a mixed weekend for the Bamboo Engineering driver in the latest round of the World Touring Car Championship on Sunday. Nash was the leading independent in race one at the Slovakia Ring, coming home sixth overall in his Chevrolet Cruze, although race two saw him forced off the track early on before eventually crossing the line

However, his Yokohama Trophy victory in the first race ensured the driver for the Silverstone-based team moved four points clear of Michael Nkjaer in the independent standings.

Bamboo team mate Alex MacDowall is third in the independent championship after he took a third and first in the Yokohama Trophy thanks to two eighth place finishes in Orechova Poton.

The series quickly moves to the Race of Hungary for the next round in Budapest this Sunday.

A family affair for Wallers at Saints

RUGBY UNION

BY MARC BAZELEY

THERE is very much a family feel to life at Franklin's Gardens these days, thanks in no small part to the two sets of brothers plying their trade for Northampton

Samoan internationals George and Ken Pisi have grabbed much of the limelight for bringing some of their Pacific Island flair to the Saints back line, but there are two other as-vet less heralded siblings doing the dirty work in the front

Alex Waller has been a regular fixture in the Northampton first team for the last two-and-a-half seasons and the loose-head prop has younger brother Ethan, who plays in the same position, snapping at his heels.

"The Saints have always been a good family club, even without brothers," said Alex. "But there are a couple of sets of brothers now and it's like 'Bring Your Family To Work Day.' I don't speak to him too much at the club, but we catch up at the weekend and it's all good.

"There will always be a cheap shot here and there [in training], but it's all friendly banter.'

While Alex has been busy helping Northampton into the Premiership semi-finals and preparing for the final regular season game away to Harlequins on Saturday, Ethan has been out on loan with Championship side Moseley, gain-

"Playing there at 20 years old, you get some big old boys who have played a lot of Premiership rugby and have a lot of experience

"At Moseley we had a tight-head called Ben Evans who has a few caps for Wales and a lot of experience. I played against him at the start of the season and then with him for the remainder, so I was always learning and it has done nothing but help me, and hopefully into it and if I can beat Corbs for the starting spot then I'm justified in saying I want to play for England

He is also wary of the younger Waller's ability, and for his part Ethan hopes both of them can go on to represent their country.

"If you're English and you're not striving to play for England, you're in the wrong game," he said. "We've both got high ambitions, but we're taking it one step at a time and the aim is to play for England. If the chance comes, we'll take it with both hands.'

I can put that to good use to try and "It's the closest you're going to get push for a spot next season. Alex has spent much of his Saints to Premiership standard and I've learnt a lot from it," said Ethan. head," said Alex. "Hopefully I can have a brilliant pre-season, plough career as understudy to Soane Subbuteo sets Steelbacks up for real thing

LEE Daggett hopes the table-top game of Subbuteo Cricket will play a big part in helping Northamptonshire Steelbacks turn around their wretched form in one-day cricket. The Steelbacks begin their Yorkshire Bank 40 campaign on Sunday at home to Nottinghamshire Outlaws, hoping to carry over their impressive form from the opening LV= County Championship Division Two games and improve on their limited overs performances in previous seasons.

Last year's 40 over competition saw Northants win just one game in Group C, and one way head coach David Ripley has tried to improve performances is digging out his old toy and going through various scenarios in team meetings over the winter.

"The coaches were pretty genius in this, I think," said Steelbacks seam bowler Daggett. "They got some Subbuteo fielders and we had a few sessions where we sat around in a conference room with a field set out and we talked through different scenarios.

"It sounds really basic, but it actually helped to talk a lot about fields and changing them, because a lot of that is assumed."

The squad spent time going through the different field place ments and tactics to be adopted for slower balls, death and new ball bowling. But while it may sound like a fun, novel approach, there was serious intent behind it. "If we're going to invest proper time in it, you've got to go into some detail," said Ripley. "It's all in the bank and we've got to try and pull it out at the right time, and then back it up with our skills.

"There is a difference between not executing your skills properly, which I believe we can cater for if we're trying to do the right thing at the right time, and trying to get rid of the maverick kind of things, or not being prepared or recognis ing the time to try things." Northants are currently in Canterbury playing Kent in their fourth County Championship game of the season, which began vesterday, before taking a break from four-day cricket for the first two YB40 matches of the season.

The matches against Nottinghamshire and Sussex Sharks will see Alex Wakely lead the Steelbacks for the first time since being appointed as limited overs captain in the winter, and Daggett hopes their preparation will aid both Wakely and the team's decision making.

"Alex is coming in as one-day captain, he's a talented batter and is learning his way into the cap-taincy role, so we want to try and make his job as easy as possible so when he asks us what field we want we can tell him straight away," said Daggett. "It's all about having Plan A, Plan

B and Plan C, and you can adjust those depending on the pitch and the batsman, the situation - all of these things."

Aidy aims for more play-off memories

FOOTBALL

BY MARC BAZELEY

marc.bazeley@hpnorthants.co.uk

AIDY Boothroyd knows what it is like to experience both the agony and the ecstasy the play-offs can bring.

ecstasy the play-offs can bring.

He famously guided Watford to an unexpected triumph in the Championship play-off in 2006 and two years later had the heartache of a semi-final defeat as the Hornets aimed to go back up at the first attempt following relegation from the Premier League.

His spell in charge of Colchester United also saw them narrowly miss out on a place in the 2009-10 League One play-offs, but he now has the chance to recreate the winning formula with Northampton Town after taking them from battling against relegation to promotion contenders.

However, Boothroyd is taking just as much from those near misses as he is the successful campaign from seven years ago heading into the first match of the two-leg semi-final at home to Cheltenham Town tonight.

"I think sometimes the negative experiences can be good for you because they give you a look at both sides of the coin," said Boothroyd. "I can also tell you what it's like to drop out of the play-offs on the last day and that's not very nice either.

"All of those experiences I have had, the things that have worked and not worked, have stood me in good stead and will do in the future because I know what it is like to be in this situation and what is required."

Northampton have experienced a remarkable turnaround since Boothroyd took over in November 2011.

They spent much of last season battling to avoid dropping out of the Football League, but are now eyeing a place in League One. The manager stated the Cobblers have only achieved his minimum requirement of reaching the play-offs and striker Roy O'Donovan, who played under Boothroyd during his ill-fated spell in charge of Coventry City, is not surprised by his ambition.

"Knowing Aidy, he wouldn't have expected anything less or have accepted it," said O'Donovan.

"I knew we were going to be challenging in the top half and they were just outside the play-offs when I came here.

"It has been a fairly good finish to the season, but Cheltenham is going to be a really hig test for us really big test for us.

"He has the experience of doing it and he'll be wanting us to do the business over two legs. All of the players he has brought in are of a similar mindset they want to play at a higher level and will give it everything to get there."

they want to play at a higher level and will give it everything to get there."

A place in the Wembley final against either Bradford City or Burton Albion is the reward for the victor. And although Boothroyd admits it will be difficult to better the success with Watford, that previous triumph is what is driving him to ensure Northampton do not miss out.

miss out.
"I don't think I'll ever top that in that your first promotion is the best, because you remember it forever, your kids remember it and everybody associated with you remembers it," said Boothroyd. "But also I haven't forgotten the times you don't make the finals, and they can be pretty difficult and stay with you for a long time.
"Between the massive high and the

"Between the massive high and the massive low is the drive that keeps you going and pushing for the ups in the game because when they come along, you've got to make sure you enjoy them."

Lane looks to bounce back against Ancliff

BOXING

ASH Lane believes sparring with British bantamweight champion Lee Haskins has been a huge benefit ahead of his return to the ring on Friday night.

on Friday night.

The 22-year-old from Northampton was stopped in the ninth round of his clash with Josh Wale for the British Masters super bantamweight title at the end of March, but received a late offer to fieht in Dudley tomorrow.

fight in Dudley tomorrow.

Lane (3-3-2) jumped at the chance to face James Ancliff (11(2)-24-3) at The Venue tomorrow night, and hopes to put into practise what he learnt from sparring with Haskins ahead of his Lonsdale belt victory over Martin Ward last Saturday.

"I sparred with Lee Haskins before he fought Stephane Jamoye [for the European title] as well and he is a class above anyone else I have been in with," said Lane.

"I got a text from him last week saying he needed a sparring partner and I've been down in Bristol doing ten and 12 rounds with Lee. I've seen an improvement in my own performance and I've learnt a lot from him."

Lane had not been expecting to fight so soon after his last fight as his boxing license was due to expire and he feared his medicals were also set to run out. However, he has been able to renew his license and went for a final doctor's check-up yesterday.

Along with being Haskins' sparring partner, Lane has been keeping his fitness levels up and feels in good condition ahead of his fourrounder on Friday night.

rounder on Friday night.

The former Far Cotton Boys amateur is now aiming to put the loss against Wale, where he was leading on the referee's scorecard going into the fateful ninth round, behind him once and for all.

That performance and a draw with Gavin McDonnell, who is set for a British title shot after beating Paul Economides last month, have given Lane encouragement he can compete with the top bantamweight boxers in the country.

First he must overcome Ancliff, who has proved a durable opponent throughout his career and has shared a ring with top prospects such as Kid Galahad and Jamie McDonnell

But having also been in with some of the country's best up-and-coming fighters, which he considers himself one of, Lane is feeling confident going into the fight and believes a stoppage win is there for the taking.

the taking.
"I saw a couple of videos of his fights and he was a good fighter in his day, but his time has passed,"

"He's not on the same level as the likes of Josh Wale and Gavin McDonnell.

"I'm looking for a stoppage and I'm determined to make a statement. I wasn't happy with my performance in my last fight."

Thunder promotion

BASKETBALL

NORTHANTS Thunder will be playing VCARS.co.uk Division Three basketball next season after the Division Four Midlands Conference champions had their promotion to the next level confirmed.

Thunder suffered just one league defeat during the regular season in their first year in senior basketball, as well as reaching the semi-finals of the Division Four play-offs.

They have been placed in the North

They have been placed in the North Conference for next season, where they will face sides from strong areas such as Birmingham, Leeds and Sheffield, and head coach Grahame Yates is already looking forward to it.

"Promotion had been the aim of the team

"Promotion had been the aim of the team from the outset of the season, but it was pleasing anyway," said Yates. "The competition in Division Three will be much tougher, but it is a challenge me and the players are relishing."

Yates was rewarded for Thunder's

Yates was rewarded for Thunder's impressive first season by being named Midlands Conference Coach Of The Year. Forward Leon Henry was also named as the conference's Player Of The Year for his point-scoring exploits.

■ NORTHAMPTON School for Girls Under-16s booked their place in the Final Fours on May 11 with a win over Framlingham High School. They face Ellesmere Port Catholic High School in the semi-finals in Nottingham. NSG's Under-14s are also through to their semi-finals at the Wildcats Arena the following weekend, where they will face Holy Trinity School.

Next test for Brown

BOXING

DREW Brown faces Solihull ABC's Matthew Galliers in the next round of the ABAE Junior Class Five 63kg Championship after winning his two fights last week to be crowned East Midlands Champion.

The Far Cotton Boys ABC fighter edged out Benjamin Peat, of Shepshed ABC, by majority decision last Thursday at Thurmaston Working Men's Club before defeating Phoenix ABC's Charlie Benner by unanimous decision two days later in the final at the Beachcomber Club in Cleethorpes.

Brown joins club mates Carl Fail and Kyle Owen in the next round of the tournament, which takes place in Birmingham on Sunday, and impressed head coach John Daly in both contests.

Daly in both contests.

"It was an excellent fight against Peat and I thought Drew had done enough to get the win," said Daly. "His non-stop aggression and straight, accurate punches to the head and body were the difference.

Nicholls hopes Town can follow Wigan to Wembley

BY MARC BAZELEY

marc.bazeley@hpnorthants.co.uk

LEE Nicholls is dreaming of following in the footsteps of parent club Wigan Athletic by reaching a Wembley final with Northampton

Town in the League Two play-offs.

The on-loan goalkeeper saw Wigan book their place in the FA
Cup final on May 11 for the first time in their history with a 2-0 win over Millwall in the semis last

The League Two play-off final is scheduled for a week after the Latics face Manchester City for the oldest prize in the domestic game, and Nicholls is keen for Northampton to earn their spot at the home of football.

"As soon as I found out they were going to Wembley I was over the moon for them," said Nicholls. "I was wishing it was me that could have been doing it for them, but now I'm in the situation where I can go to Wembley and show them what I can do there."
Wigan boss Roberto Martinez will be keeping a close eye on Nicholls, who has rarely put a foot wrong during his season on loan at Sixfields. But while the thought of reaching Wembley to face either Bradford City or Burton Albion for a place in League One is in the back of his mind, the 20-year-old is well aware the Cobblers must first beat Cheltenham Town over two legs, the first of which is tonight at home. "We're not really talking about it yet; we've got to take each game as it comes," said Nicholls. "We're not even there yet so we shouldn't really be talking about it that much.

■ Lee Nicholls is dreaming of following Wigan Athletic to Wembley (Picture: Andy Kearns)

"The first thing is we need to take the game on Thursday first, see what the result is and then know

It is 16 years since Northampton made their first appearance at Wembley, with John Frain scoring a 93rd minute free kick to give them a 1-0 win over Swansea City in the old Division Three play-off final. The same season also saw Wigan promoted as third division champions, starting off the rise which saw them eventually reach the promised land of the Premier League in

Cobblers chairman David Cardoza has long spoke of his ambition for Town to become an established Championship team, and believes manager Aidy Boothroyd is the man who can take them there.

Nicholls aims to play a part in the start of such a rise, and will also be keeping a close eye on the Cup final. However, he would not be drawn on a prediction.

Wigan hope Manchester City are a good side so you can't take anything away from " he said.

Hartley pride at Lions selection for summer tour to face Australians

RUGBY UNION

TUESDAY was set to be another normal day of training for Northampton Saints captain Dylan Hartley until he found out just before the start he had been chosen in the British & Irish Lions squad to tour Australia this

Hartley was named as one of three hookers in Warren Gatland's side for the tour and three-test series against the Wallabies, and is the only member of the current Saints squad to be picked in the 37-man party.

Future signing George North, who will move to Northampton from Welsh regional side Scarlets in the summer, was also included and Hartley is delighted to have the opportunity to represent the Lions.

"For it to actually happen is quite surreal," said Hartley. "I was very aware that the squad was being announced at 11 o'clock, which was the same time that training was starting, and Jim Mallinder came up and whispered it into my ear that I'd been selected.

"I'm very humbled. It's the pinnacle of rugby, and it hasn't really sunk in yet. I'm just happy that the sleepless nights are over now. I'd put a lot of pressure on myself to try and make it, but it's out of your hands and it's the coaches who are the ones who pick the squad."

Hartley's inclusion means Northampton have been represented on six consecutive Lions tours, although the decision not to include back row Tom Wood as well may have come as a surprise to some after his impressive form for both club and country this season.

Hartley will have to battle it out with England team mate Tom Youngs and Wales' Richard Hibbard for the number two shirt. The tour begins with a match against the Barbarians in Hong Kong on June 1, with the first test against Australia on June 22.
